
The Crash Of The Gold Bloc

By R. T. ELLIOTT, R.C.

A NEW school of thought in matters financial is proclaiming the doctrine that it is not what you use for money, but what you use money for that really matters.

This would be true in a world where each nation carried on all its commerce within its own borders. In our world of today, wherein a percentage of international trade is necessary for every nation—the choice of what to use for money requires a provision for adjusting balances abroad, whether debit or credit, in some medium of currency or exchange which has international circulating value.

The countries constituting the gold group in Europe, not being gold producers, found that as a result of following the value of paper money, and holding up customs duties so that all international transactions must be balanced by a greater amount of money than corresponded with world values, there was such a shrinkage in exports that the only way to adjust balances abroad was to send gold, and the gold supply was not available in sufficient quantity to hold up the value of paper money to a parity with gold at the new world price, and to take care of balances abroad.

There was no way out except to reduce the value of the paper money, so that $35.00 per ounce gold would give security for more paper money than $20.00 per ounce gold; and to reduce customs duties so that there could be a two-way international trade on a basis of fair adherence to world values. That is how and why the Gold Bloc crashed.

AIR RAID DRESS REHEARSAL HELD IN PARIS

Actual Wartime Conditions Prevail For While in Gay Capital

PARIS, Oct. 17.—Paris was played into wartime conditions last night when an eerie realistic air drill blackened the capital of France.

Groups of students ran to the roof of the theatre in the pitch dark, and the fire engines which were used throughout the exercise.

"Bombs"—small rockets—were dropped on the city, and their flicking, dazed, and fire engines which were used throughout the exercise.

There, with almost serious police and firemen dashed heading into the city, and their flicking, dazed, and fire engines which were used throughout the exercise.

Most of the "bombs" were dropped around the Odéon, historic state theatre on the left bank of the Seine.

owners and their allies the military, has broken out in revolt. Hence the present deluge of blood.

Yet this does not entirely clear up the picture. Other countries in Europe which have suffered from the agrarian disease in the past, in the last few years have solved the problem by cutting up large estates, distributing them in the present and reorganizing the land-holding by the entire processes of democratic government. Spain, however, is different. The land evil has penetrated as deeply into the system of the country that the most radical measures were inevitable. Add to this an economic depression which makes our dark days just before the coming of the banks in 1933 look like a period of radiant prosperity and it is evident why Spain has reached its present pass.

Just as a case report of Spain's sickness, take the little village of Hinojosa, in the Sierra Morena mountains, not far from the site of some of the recent forest fighting. An economic expert from Madrid visited this place last spring. Here is what he found:

AGRICULTURAL. Hinojosa is at present an agricultural community, with large ranches raising wheat and olive trees. Formerly, a part of its large peasant population found work in a large lead mine nearby. One day several years ago, some hoaxes of directors in London decreed a drop in the price of lead. Soon after the directors visited the Hinojosa mine, made up their mind and ordered the mine to be closed, because it could not compete in the world market. The miners were thrown back on the land, where soil salt and difficult to cultivate, could not support a crop of them.

Those who did obtain work during the wheat and olive harvests found the pecuniary pickings rather slim. The miners were thrown back on the land, where soil salt and difficult to cultivate, could not support a crop of them.

tributed to the tillers. In Spain, an even more complicated system prevails. The peasant often has but the fourth link in a chain. First, the landlord; second, the lesser third, the tenant; and fourth, the sub-tenant.

NOT ALL BLAME

As a matter of fact, not all the blame attaches to the landlord. The peasant often has but the fourth link in a chain. First, the landlord; second, the lesser third, the tenant; and fourth, the sub-tenant.

From the better-off section of the village there on a level rarely seen in our American farming, however, there is no doctor, the nearest being about 40 miles away—village simply cannot afford to go that far.

This example is not untypical. In Hinojosa, the director of the Institute of Agrarian Studies not long ago on the paid four years his institution of the struggle reported to have broken out between anarchists and conservatives with an excuse for the "law and order" military rebels, were followed by cash deals between the plutocrats and reformers.

NONE ARISE

But neither sincere anarchists nor conservatives could have arisen, had not Spain been one of the most backward countries in Europe. Industrially, Spain's production of pig iron, 300,000 tons in 1933, is the lowest in the last of European countries, below Belgium and Italy. Luxembourg, similarly, this relatively large country produced but 200,000 tons of coal in the same year, and although Spanish coal reserves are estimated to be 100 billion tons, Germany produced 730,000 tons. Spain's production of steel, however, is 110,000 tons, less than the output of Belgium, the Saar, Luxembourg and Italy.

In few countries does railroad mileage stand at such a low percentage, 35 per square kilometer. Spain's railroad network is 14 per square kilometer. Spain's freight capacity is 25 times that of France. The Chamber of Commerce of Salamanca complains, "It costs more to send a shipment from Salamanca to Barcelona than from Spain to Buenos Aires."

A contract in song in opera has been signed by Betty Rose Schultz, 15-year-old, believed the youngest person ever to win that distinction. A soprano in a Chicago artist school, she was given an audition by the manager of the Chicago City Opera Company and the result was an engagement to sing during the coming season. She will be known as Betty Jaynes.

The industrial situation takes right alongside the agricultural situation, in the surrender to the depression. Out of an industrial population of some 4 millions, 200,000 have been out of work. And no money has been kept them from starving.

This accounts more than anything else for the astonishing strength of the anarchist movement in Spain. While most anarchists today disavow any connection with the anarchist movement in Spain, which caused so much trouble and so many assassinations years ago, the tradition of violence has survived in a certain extent. In Spain, the plutocrats for example have taken advantage of the objection of the unemployed in such centers as Barcelona, with disastrous results to law and order. These gangs have turned anarchists into a class, paying not only on the rich but also on other working class organizations such as the Co-Operative. Indeed, they sometimes sell out to reactionary elements. Many present civil war, the Vazquez automatons (Baques) made a deal with Madrid by which their claims were recognized. Still, although the Baques are conservatives and Catholics, they fought side by side with the communists and anarchists in the defense of Madrid.

The question of the Church also enters into this situation. For the Church, besides being very wealthy, has interfering interests with the industrialists, financiers and big landowners. During the last century, the Church was very little to do with this for a century ago, but now it was known in Spain, discredited elements burnt churches. The Church in Spain, because of its intimate connection with the government, has been a powerful force in the way of such reforms. The Church, therefore, has become identified in the minds of many people in Spain with the preservation of the old order.

LOOKS DARK

The future of Spain looks extremely dark, in view of its industrial backwardness, its separatism, the problem of the Church, and above all because of its land problem. If the rebels win, they will have incalculable trouble, making the opposition of the ranks of the people who are undoubtedly in favor of the present government. They will inevitably stumble on the agrarian question, since their principal backers are the landlords who want to keep the status quo. On the other hand, if the government wins, it will have to reconstruct the entire country from the land on up. After the widespread destruction of property during the present civil war, it would inevitably have to seek foreign financial assistance, which even a fairly stable capitalist government has a hard time getting today. Add to this the disastrous arising from separatism, and the expected resistance of large groups of anarchists and workers, and one can readily see how the Spanish volcano will erupt in ruin and smoke for many years to come.

The car was loaded off at Oakville today for further contributions.

Employed Married Women Arouse Ire of His Worship

Mayor Joseph Clarke has expressed on women, and what's more, he's not afraid to express them. At a meeting of the Edmonton Hospital Board Friday His Worship criticized the idea of keeping three married women on the staff of the Royal Alexandra hospital.

"I don't believe," he said, "that any woman should work anywhere at any time, except in her home. When a man marries a woman he promises to protect and keep her. I think it unworthy of a feminine character to engage in work that should be reserved for men. We dismissed nearly all our married teachers, and I hope that we have a general cleanup and back-to-the-kitchen movement started in Edmonton."

This thing Mrs. I. G. Ringwood, one of the women members of the board, told in an eloquent speech. "Would you have been degraded (she asked) the interested taxpayer, 'would you have women assume the inferior status of being kept women?'"

The meeting devoted the attention to a committee for further consideration.

Wedding Ring Lost 'In '95 Is Recovered In Wake of Strike

LACOLLE, Que., Oct. 17.—A bride of little more than a month, Alma Bedard lost her wedding ring back in 1935. As the years went by, she grew more and more determined to get it back. She was seriously ill, and she was in a state of despair. She was in a state of despair. She was in a state of despair.

Three persons were seriously injured in a clash between striking railwaymen in a near by factory and workmen protesting the walk-out. It while dining a dish.

Dear Sirs:

Just a few lines in appreciation for the wonderful condition our furniture arrived in. The men who unpacked the chairs and the bed were all in fine condition, they were packed so well. Some things were not very high and were pleased to find them all O.K. You are to be complimented on the type of men you have working for you. They were courteous and pleasant to have around.

Thanking you for the way everything was handled.

Yours truly,
W. J. TWITCHELL.

CITY ELECTION CAMPAIGN WILL OPEN ON NOV. 3

Tentative schedule of campaign meetings for the city elections provides for the opening of the campaign on Tuesday, November 3, with three election meetings each night, excepting Sunday, until November 10, making a total of 21 meetings. It was announced at city hall Saturday.

TWO EXTRA MEETINGS
In addition to these gatherings, the Civic Youth Association has arranged for two extra meetings each night of the campaign at which C.Y.A. candidates will speak. The committee of continuing addressers who drew up the tentative schedule of campaign meetings has recommended that each mayoralty candidate be given 10 minutes in which to speak, aldermanic and school board contestants receiving five minutes each.

PREFERENCE GIVEN
A large number of applications for positions as deputy returning officers and poll clerks have been received by Mr. Russell, who believes that preference is being given to taxpayers and ex-servicemen. Since the first of revision on the 1936 civic voters list opened last Saturday, 72 new names have been added to the list. Qualified electors whose names do not appear on the list are requested to make application to Reviving Officer A. W. Blain to have them included. Mr. Blain is receiving applications in the city assessor's office, ground floor of the Civic Block, between the hours of 8 p.m. and 10 p.m. every night, excepting Sunday, until October 21.

PREMIER BACK FROM HIS TOUR

Premier William Abernethy, who has returned from a two-week tour of the provinces, will address the Edmonton Protestant Bible Conference at the Strand Theatre on Sunday evening. Hon. Ernest C. Manning, minister of trade and commerce, will speak at the Protestant Bible Institute, Calgary, on Sunday afternoon.

Men To Be Placed On Farms Before Winter Sets In
Following a conference with a delegation representing the single unemployed men of the city on Friday, at which the men protested their participation in the Dominion-Provincial farm settlement scheme should be voluntary. The Alberta Relief commission and on Saturday received a wire back that as many men as possible should participate in the scheme and should be placed before winter sets in.

The situation will be further discussed between the Relief Commission and the provincial government. Several hundred men have been placed under the scheme and they are going out at the rate of between 50 and 60 a day. Under this plan the men are paid $1 a month and if the men remain on the farm from the time they go until the plan expires on March 31, they will receive a monthly bonus of $250.

Police Court

Pleading guilty to charges of operating an automobile while intoxicated, William Charles, was sentenced to seven days with hard labor at Fort Saskatchewan by Magistrate James Bunch in police court Saturday.

Everette revealed that the accused, a farmer, had driven his car into a ditch and was unable to get out. The influence of liquor on August 7, he had been given a remand until October 17, in order to allow him to harvest his crops.

A fine of $20 and costs of $30 day was levied on Bernard Black, who pleaded guilty to charges of driving a truck without a chauffeur's license.

Peter McCready, well-known baseball player, pleaded not guilty to charges of driving a car without a license in the crown case was set over until October 17, in order to allow him to harvest his crops.

A further remand of three months was given to a man charged with driving a car without a license, who was remanded in custody until October 17, in order to allow him to harvest his crops.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

In "The Inquiring Reporter" column recently H. G. Smith, who is attending a University, was quoted as saying he had spent years of time and passed a great deal of money on life insurance.

Today the D.D. asked "What is your opinion of the advantages or disadvantages of a University education?" He elicited the following replies:

E. A. DUTTON, businessman graduate of the U. of T. "This question has many ramifications. Some students get a lot of out of it, but many others get nothing. And the advantages or disadvantages of a University education depend on a great deal on the individual. As far as his later business or social life is concerned, a University education is a great advantage. I would not be prepared to say that the average man who has attended University gets ahead more or less than the average man who hasn't."

DOUG. GROVE, business executive
"Business men, more than ever before, demand University-trained men, and it has been my experience that the young man who has this higher education will be liked in preference to the person who does not possess it. I am firmly of the opinion that a University graduate has more character, is more commercially and socially, than the other fellow. I don't mean to say the boy who never went to University hasn't got any character. If he's got a lot and studies at home he can help himself enormously."

MISS JEAN WEBB, stenographer
"There are lots of things to be said in favor of a University education. It gives a person a better education and who meet it in a serious way are bound to derive considerable benefit from it. One who has been up to the academic side, are waiting their time and will be a disadvantage when they compete with others in their life's work."

Domestic Value for Arctic Musk-Ox Seen By Noted Biologist

Biologist

W. H. B. Hoar, Ottawa, Declares Animal Yields Wool Finer and Softer Than Sheep's Wool.

By ROY SHAW
Behind a team of straining dogs, in the blue-white vastness of the frozen Arctic, he follows the trail of the plodding caribou, setting his eyes on the eerie light of the mid-day sun.

The mid-day sun? In midwinter, within the Arctic circle, the sun has been seen for 24 hours. Several years ago Capt. Andrew Bernier, well-known Arctic explorer, brought a large quantity of this wool out of the Arctic. Made into a sweater, it was found to be finer and softer than sheep's wool.

BIOLOGICAL SURVEY
He returned to the city en route to Ottawa, after spending the summer in the barren, with Dr. C. H. D. Clancy, on a biological survey into the Thelon game sanctuary and surrounding territory.

One of the chief interests of the survey and of Mr. Hoar's earlier excursions into the territory, was the musk-ox. The only placid species on the only animal in the world to survive the ice age, the musk-ox is a relic of the past.

Killing of one of these beasts is forbidden, by law, under any circumstances. Though, this year, it was found to be in the hands of the Arctic, Mr. Hoar has spent many years studying these animals.

Shaggy and heavy in appearance, their coat yields a wool that is finer and softer than sheep's wool. Several years ago Capt. Andrew Bernier, well-known Arctic explorer, brought a large quantity of this wool out of the Arctic. Made into a sweater, it was found to be finer and softer than sheep's wool.

Do you believe the musk-ox will be a disadvantage when they compete with others in their life's work?

BY STUDYING THE "EAR STONES," CURIOUS BODIES FOUND IN THE EARS OF FISH, THE AGE OF THE FISH CAN BE DETERMINED.

There are two methods in use for determining the age of a fish. By using the "ear stone" method, mentioned above, there is the "scale" method. Fish add a growth ring to each of their scales for each year they live. — Found the same as a tree's annual growth rings.

Eve Ellwell was coming down. She was wearing pale yellow satin, cut on clinging lines, and rhinestone jewelry. Her wheat-colored hair crowned her head in small, contrived ringlets which climaxed in curly bangs across her forehead. The effect was a theatrical sophistication. EDMONTON, ALBERTA, Oct. 17, 1936.

THE CURIOUS WORLD

THE HORSE

1 BACK IN THE EOCENE PERIOD, SOME 50,000,000 YEARS AGO, THERE LIVED ON THIS EARTH A LITTLE CREATURE KNOWN TO MODERN SCIENTISTS AS EOHIPPIUS, MEANING "DAWN HORSE." FOSSILS OF THESE ANIMALS HAVE BEEN FOUND OVER A LARGE PART OF NORTH AMERICA, AND THEY ARE BELIEVED TO BE THE ANCESTORS OF ALL OUR PRESENT-DAY HORSES.

2 EOHIPPIUS WAS NO LARGER THAN A FOX. HE HAD FOUR TOES ON HIS FORE FEET, AND THREE ON THE HIND FEET. THESE SPREADING TOES KEPT HIM FROM MIRING DOWN IN THE SOFT MARSHES.

3 MILLIONS OF YEARS AFTER EOHIPPIUS, CAME MESOHIPPIUS, OR "MIDDLE HORSE." THIS ANIMAL STOOD 24 INCHES HIGH AT THE SHOULDERS, AND HAD THREE TOES, FORE AND HIND.

4 AS THE NEED FOR MORE SPEED BECAME NECESSARY, THE MIDDLE TOE OF THE THREE-TOED HORSE BECAME LONGER AND STRONGER; THE SIDE TOES BECAME WEAKER AND LESS USEFUL. ABOVE IS SHOWN THE EVOLUTION OF THE FORE FOOT, FROM FOUR TOES TO A SINGLE, ENLARGED HOOF.

5 TODAY THERE IS ONLY ONE LIVING SPECIES OF THE TRUE WILD HORSE. THIS ANIMAL, KNOWN AS PREZVALSKY'S HORSE, IS FOUND IN THE KOBDO DISTRICT OF WESTERN MONGOLIA.
